

CONTRIBUTORS

NICHOLAS CAPALDI, the McFarlin Endowed Professor of Philosophy and Research Professor of Law at the University of Tulsa and founder and former director of Legal Studies, teaches in the departments of political science, philosophy, religion, and the law school. His most recent book is The Enlightenment Project in the Analytic Conversation.

ELLEN R. KLEIN is an associate professor of philosophy at Flagler College in St. Augustine, Florida. She wrote Feminism under Fire (Prometheus Books, 1996) and is a critic of academic feminism who argues against feminist political philosophy, epistemology, philosophy of science, pedagogy, and constructs of “gender” and “date rape.”

MARK LEBAR is an assistant professor of philosophy at Ohio University, where he works on moral, social, and political philosophy.

TIBOR R. MACHAN is distinguished fellow and Freedom Communications Professor of Business Ethics and Free Enterprise at the Leatherby Center for Entrepreneurship and Business Ethics, Argy-

x / Contributors

ros School of Business and Economics, Chapman University, and a research fellow at the Hoover Institution.

JAN NARVESON is a professor of philosophy at the University of Waterloo in Ontario, Canada. His extensive writings on moral and political philosophy include The Libertarian Idea (Temple University Press, 1988; to be republished, Broadview Press, 2001), Moral Matters (Broadview Press, 2d edition, 1999), and (with Marilyn Friedman) Political Correctness: For and Against (Rowman & Littlefield, 1995). He is also the editor of Moral Issues (Oxford University Press, 1983) and author of several hundred papers and reviews in philosophical and other journals and book.