

Contributors

Peter Berkowitz teaches at George Mason University School of Law and is a research fellow at Stanford's Hoover Institution. The author of Nietzsche: The Ethics of an Immoralist (1995) and Virtue and the Making of Modern Liberalism (1999), he also is a contributing editor at The New Republic and writes on ethics, law, and politics for a wide variety of publications. He serves as a senior consultant to the President's Council on Bioethics.

David Davenport is a research fellow at the Hoover Institution and is distinguished professor of public policy and law at Pepperdine University. He served as president of Pepperdine University from 1985 through 2000.

Chester E. Finn Jr. is a senior fellow at Stanford's Hoover Institution, president of the Thomas B. Fordham Foundation and Thomas B. Fordham Institute, and senior editor of Education Next. His primary focus is the reform of primary and secondary schooling. Finn is also a fellow of the International Academy of Education and an adjunct fellow at the Hudson Institute, where he worked from 1995 through 1998.

Douglas W. Kmiec holds the Caruso Family Chair in Constitutional Law at Pepperdine University in California. A well-known commentator in the national media on constitutional subjects, he has authored numerous books and articles, including The American Constitutional Order (1999), now going into its second edition. Professor Kmiec has served as dean of the Catholic University of America Law School, taught for nearly two decades at Notre Dame Law, and served Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H. W. Bush as constitutional legal counsel.

Stanley Kurtz is a research fellow at Stanford University's Hoover Institution. He has a doctorate in social anthropology from Harvard University and has taught social theory and cross-cultural psychology at Harvard University and the University of Chicago.

Harvey C. Mansfield, the William R. Kenan Jr. Professor of Government at Harvard University, studies and teaches political philosophy. He has written on Edmund Burke and the nature of political parties, on Machiavelli and the invention of indirect government, in defense of a defensible liberalism, and in favor of a constitutional American political science. He has also written on the discovery and development of the theory of executive power and is a translator of Machiavelli and Tocqueville. He held Guggenheim and NEH fellowships and was on the Advisory Council of the NEH.

Hanna Skandera is a research fellow at the Hoover Institution. Skandera specializes in K–12 education policy and the intersection of American culture and values. She recently co-authored the book School Figures: A Look at the Details behind the Debate (2003) and is an adjunct professor at Pepperdine University's School of Public Policy.