

CONTRIBUTORS

Alexei Arbatov is a scholar-in-residence at Carnegie Moscow Center and Program Co-chair on Nuclear Nonproliferation. He served as a member of the Russian parliament (State Duma) and as Deputy Chairman of the Defense Committee from 1994 to 2003. Dr. Arbatov has authored a number of books, including Russia and the West: The 21st Century Security Environment with Karl Kaiser and Robert Legvold (1999), and Beyond Nuclear Deterrence: Transforming the U.S.-Russian Equation with Vladimir Dvorkin and with a foreword by John D. Steinbrunner (2006). He has written numerous articles and papers on global security, strategic stability, disarmament, Russian military reform, and various issues of current domestic and foreign policy.

Karen Brutents, Ph.D., served as deputy head of the International Department at the Central Committee of the CPSU and as an adviser to the president of the Soviet Union, Mikhail Gorbachev. He is the author of a number of books and many articles on international relations. His latest books are Thirty Years at the Old Square (1998) and Unfulfilled (2005).

Anatoli Cherniaev is an associate at the Gorbachev Foundation in Moscow. For most of the glasnost period he was the chief foreign policy adviser to Mikhail Gorbachev, the leader of the Soviet Union. Prior to working for Gorbachev, Cherniaev served for twenty years in the International Department of the Central Committee of the Communist Party. His latest books include Did Rus- sia Have a Chance? It Was the Last One (2003); Eternity of Woman (2000); My Six Years with Gorbachev (2000); 1991: The Diary of the Aide to the President of the USSR (1997); and My Life and My Time (1995).

Oleg Grinevsky served as Ambassador of the Russian Federation to Sweden from 1991 to 1997. He served as head of the Soviet delegation to the Vienna Negotiation on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe (CFE) from 1989 to 1991. Ambassador Grinevsky was Director of the Middle East Department in the Soviet Foreign Ministry and headed the Soviet delegation to the CSCE Stockholm Conference from 1984 to 1986. Ambassador Grinevsky has published numerous articles and papers on issues of international security, disarmament, arms control, Soviet and Russian foreign policy, and modern Middle East policy. His latest books include The Break: From Brezhnev to Gorbachev (2004), Scenario for World War Three (2002), and Secrets of Soviet Diplomacy (2000).

David Holloway is Professor of Political Science, Raymond A. Spruance Professor in International History, and senior fellow at the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies, Stanford University. He is the author of Stalin and the Bomb: The Soviet Union and Atomic Energy, 1939–1956 (1994).

Robert L. Hutchings is Diplomat in Residence at Princeton University, where he has also served as Assistant Dean of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. During a public service leave from the university in 2003–05, he was Chairman of the U.S. National Intelligence Council in Washington, D.C. His combined academic and diplomatic career has included service as Fellow and Director of International Studies at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, Director for European Affairs with the National Security Council, and Special Adviser to the Secretary of State, with the rank of ambassador. He has also served as deputy director of Radio Free Europe and on the faculty of the University of Virginia, and has written widely about U.S. foreign policy and European politics. He is the author of American Diplomacy and the End of the Cold War: An Insider's Account of U.S. Policy in Europe, 1989–1992 (1997).

Jack F. Matlock Jr. was the George F. Kennan Professor at the Institute for Advanced Study from 1996 to 2001. Subsequently, he served as visiting professor at Princeton University and Sol Linowitz Professor of International Relations at Hamilton College. He served as U.S. Ambassador to the Soviet Union from 1987 to 1991 and as Special Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs and Senior Director for European and Soviet Affairs on the National Security Council staff from 1983 to 1986. His recent books include Reagan and Gorbachev: How the Cold War Ended (2004) and Autopsy on an Empire: The American Ambassador's Account of the Collapse of the Soviet Union (1995).

Michael McFaul is the Peter and Helen Bing Senior Fellow at the Hoover Institution, Professor of Political Science at Stanford University, and the director of the Center on Democracy, Development, and the Rule of Law at the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies at Stanford. His latest books include After the Collapse of Communism: Comparative Lessons of Transitions with Kathryn Stoner-Weiss (2005) and Russia's Unfinished Revolution: Political Change from Gorbachev to Putin (2001).

Georgi I. Mirski is a chief research fellow at the Institute of World Economy and International Relations in Moscow, Russian Academy of Sciences. He is also a member of the board of advisers of Russia in Global Affairs. His books include On Ruins of Empire: Ethnicity and Nationalism in the Former Soviet Union (1997).

Pavel Palazhchenko is adviser to the President of the Gorbachev Foundation. He served at the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affairs beginning in 1987 and was an interpreter for Mikhail Gorbachev during all Soviet-American summits. His latest book is My Years with Gorbachev and Shevardnadze: The Memoir of a Soviet Interpreter (1997).

Nikolai Petrov is a scholar-in-residence at the Carnegie Moscow Center, where he co-chairs the Russian Domestic Politics program and the Civil Society Project. He was adviser and analyst for the Russian parliament (Supreme Council) and government from 1991 to 1993 and served the presidential administration from 1994 to 1995. From 1993 to 1994 he was a scholar at the Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies. His latest books include Between Dictatorship and Democracy: Russian Post-Communist Political Reform with Michael McFaul and Andrei Ryabov (2004), and contributions to The Dynamics of Russian Politics: Putin's Reform of Federal-Regional Relations (2006).

Condoleezza Rice has served as U.S. Secretary of State since January 2005. She was National Security Adviser to President George W. Bush from 2001 to 2005 and Senior Director of Soviet and East European Affairs in the National Security Council from 1989 to 1991. Dr. Rice is on a leave of absence from Stanford University, where she was a Professor of Political Science from 1993 to 2000 and a Senior Fellow at the Hoover Institution from 1999 to 2000. Her books include Germany Unified and Europe Transformed: A Study in Statecraft with Philip Zelikow (1995) and The Soviet Union and the Czechoslovak Army, 1948–1983: Uncertain Allegiance (1984).

Peter W. Rodman is a senior fellow in the Foreign Policy Studies program at the Brookings Institution. He served as Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs from 2001 to 2007. During the administrations of Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H. W. Bush, Mr. Rodman was Director of the State Department Policy Planning Staff (1984–1986), Deputy Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs (1986–1987), and Special Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs and National Security Council Counselor (1987–1990). He was a member of the NSC staff during the Nixon and Ford administrations (1969–1977). He is the author of More Precious than Peace: The Cold War and the Struggle for the Third World (1994).

George P. Shultz is the Thomas W. and Susan B. Ford Distinguished Fellow at the Hoover Institution, Stanford University. Mr. Shultz served in four cabinet positions: Secretary of Labor (1969–1970), Director of the Office of Management and Budget (1970–1972), Secretary of the Treasury (1972–1974), and Secretary of State (1982–89). His numerous books include Economic Policy Beyond the Headlines with Kenneth Dam (1977) and Turmoil and Triumph: My Years as Secretary of State (1993).

Kiron K. Skinner is an associate professor of international relations at Carnegie Mellon University and a research fellow at the Hoover Institution, Stanford University. She serves on the Chief of Naval Operations Executive Panel and the National Security Education Board. She is a coauthor of the New York Times best-sellers Reagan, In His Own Hand: The Writings of Ronald Reagan that Reveal His Revolutionary Vision of America with Annelise Anderson and Martin Anderson (2001) and Reagan, A Life in Letters with Annelise Anderson and Martin Anderson (2003).

Philip Zelikow holds the White Burkett Miller chair in the Department of History at the University of Virginia. He served as counselor of the Department of State from 2005 to 2007. He has also served as the Executive Director of the 9/11 Commission. A former foreign service officer, he worked on the staff of the National Security Council from 1989 to 1991. His books include Essence of Decision: Explaining the Cuban Missile Crisis with Graham Allison (revised edition, 1999), The Kennedy Tapes: Inside the White House During the Cuban Missile Crisis with Ernest May (1997), and Ger- many Unified and Europe Transformed: A Study in Statecraft with Condoleezza Rice (1995).

Vladislav Zubok is Associate Professor of History at Temple University. His latest books include Anti-Americanism in Russia: From Stalin to Putin with Eric Shiraev (2000), Inside the Kremlin's Cold War: From Stalin to Khrushchev with Constantine Pleshakov (1996), and A Failed Empire: The Soviet Union in the Cold War from Stalin to Gorbachev (2007).