

Editors and Contributors

WILLIAM J. BENNETT was U.S. Secretary of Education and Chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities under President Reagan and Director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy under President George H. W. Bush. The author of The Book of Virtues and several other bestsellers, he is a fellow at the Heritage Foundation and codirector of Empower America. He is founder and Chairman of K–12, an Internet-based school for kindergarten through twelfth grade.

WILLIAMSON M. EVERS is a research fellow at Stanford University's Hoover Institution and a member of the Institution's Koret Task Force on K–12 Education. Dr. Evers is a member of the National Educational Research Policy and Priorities Board and the White House Commission on Presidential Scholars. He currently serves on the California state testing system's question-writing panels for history and mathematics and served on the California State Academic Standards Commission. He is a member of the board of directors of the East Palo Alto Charter School and a member of the policy board of the California History–Social Science Project, which provides subject-matter training to teachers.

ERIC A. HANUSHEK is the Paul and Jean Hanna Senior Fellow on Education Policy at the Hoover Institution. His research concentrates on applied public finance and public policy analysis with special emphasis on education issues. From 1983 through 1985, Dr. Hanushek was deputy director of the Congressional Budget Office. He was president of the Association for Public Policy Analysis and Management in 1988–89. In 1997, he was selected to be a member of the International Academy of Education.

EUGENE W. HICKOK is U.S. Undersecretary of Education. From 1995 to 2001, he served as Pennsylvania Secretary of Education. Before that, he served as associate professor of political science at Dickinson College in Pennsylvania.

LANCE T. IZUMI is senior fellow in California studies and director of the Center for School Reform at the Pacific Research Institute for Public Policy. He is the author of several major studies, including the California Index of Leading Education Indicators (1997 and 2000 editions). He serves as a commissioner on the California Postsecondary Education Commission and is a member of the Professional Development Working Group of the California Legislature's Joint Committee to Develop a Master Plan for Education.

JUNE C. RIVERS is the assistant manager of value-added assessment and research for SAS inSchool. Dr. Rivers has collaborated with Dr. William Sanders on research on the influence of school systems, schools, and teachers on student performance. Dr. Rivers has also served as a K–12 teacher and administrator, a member of the Tennessee education commissioner's staff, and a staff member of the University of Tennessee State Testing and Evaluation Center.

WILLIAM L. SANDERS is the manager of value-added assessment and research for SAS inSchool. Previously, he served as professor and director of the University of Tennessee Value-Added Research and Assessment Center. Research conducted by Dr. Sanders and his colleagues demonstrated that value-added education outcome assessment can be measured from student achievement data.

J. E. STONE is a professor of education psychology at East Tennessee State University. He is the author of numerous scholarly and popular articles on teaching methodology, and he edits and operates the Education Consumers Clearinghouse Web site (www.education-consumers.com).

HERBERT J. WALBERG is a research professor of education and psychology at the University of Illinois at Chicago. His research focuses on the effects of various education conditions and methods on learning and other outcomes. He has prepared comparative education studies for the U.S. Department of Education, the Department of State, and the White House. Dr. Walberg served on the National Assessment Governing Board and is a fellow of four academic organizations, including the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Psychological Association, and the Royal Statistical Society. Walberg is founding member and vice president of the International Academy of Education, headquartered in Brussels. He chaired the scientific advisory group for the Paris-based Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, a project on international educational indicators. He currently chairs the board of Chicago's Heartland Institute.