Paul and Jean Hanna Senior Fellow in Education

Expertise: Economics of education; applied public finance and public policy analysis, with special emphasis on education issues

Eric Hanushek is a leading expert on educational policy. From 1978 until his appointment at Hoover in 2000, he taught economics and political science at the University of Rochester, where he also served as the founding director of the Wallis Institute of Political Economy. From 1983 to 1985, he was deputy director of the Congressional Budget Office. His publications include Making Schools Work: Improving Performance and Controlling Costs (1994) and Improving America's Schools: The Role of Incentives (1997), coedited with Dale Jorgenson. His current research focuses on how the organization, finance, and resources of schools affect student performance in the United States and world-wide.
