

About the Author

John E. Chubb is chief development officer and co-founder of EdisonLearning, a company that for nearly twenty years has partnered with public school districts and charter school boards nationwide to provide innovative schools and education programs, with a focus on disadvantaged students. Dr. Chubb is also a distinguished visiting fellow at the Hoover Institution at Stanford University and a member of the Koret Task Force on K-12 Education. He has previously served as a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution and faculty member at Stanford University.

Dr. Chubb's research focuses on student achievement, school choice, education technology, and education policy. He is the author of numerous books, including Liberating Learning: Technology, Politics, and the Future of American Education (Jossey-Bass, 2009), with Terry M. Moe; Within Our Reach: How America Can Educate Every Child (Hoover, 2005); and Politics, Markets, and America's Schools (Brookings, 1990). His numerous articles and professional papers have appeared in the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, Education Next, the Brookings Review, and the American Political Science Review, among others, and many edited volumes.

Dr. Chubb has also served as an advisor to the White House, the U.S. Department of Education, state governments, and various education organizations. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota and an A.B. summa cum laude from Washington University in St. Louis, both in political science.