

SEYMOUR MARTIN LIPSET

Senior Fellow

Expertise: Political sociology, trade union organization, social stratification, public opinion, sociology of intellectual life, conditions for democracy in comparative perspective

In addition to his Hoover appointment, Seymour Martin Lipset is an endowed professor at George Mason University and a professor emeritus of political science and sociology at Stanford University. His most recent works are American Exceptionalism: A Double-Edged Sword (1996) and It Didn't Happen Here: Why Socialism Failed in the United States (2000). He has served as president of both the American Sociological Association and the American Political Science Association (the only person to do so), in addition to serving as president of a number of other professional societies. The holder of a Ph.D. in sociology from Columbia University, he is a fellow of the American Philosophical Society, the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the National Academy of Education.