

ALVIN RABUSHKA

*David and Joan Traitel
Senior Fellow*

Expertise: Taxation in the United States and abroad; economic development in the Pacific Rim countries, Israel, and the transition countries of Central and Eastern Europe, especially Russia

The holder of a Ph.D. in political science from Washington University, Alvin Rabushka is the author or coauthor of more than twenty books in the areas of taxation, state and local government finances, and the economic development of Hong Kong, Taiwan, Korea, Singapore, Israel, and Russia. With Hoover fellow Robert Hall, he wrote The Flat Tax (1985 and 1995). His most recent books include, with David Newman and Hoover fellow Bruce Bueno de Mesquita, Red Flag over Hong Kong (1996); with Hoover fellow Michael Bernstam, Fixing Russia's Banks: A Proposal for Growth (1998); and, with Hoover fellow Bruce Bueno de Mesquita, Predicting Politics (2002). In addition, he and Bernstam are writing From Predation to Prosperity: Breaking Up Enterprise Network Socialism in Russia, which is being published chapter by chapter on the Internet.