

MARGARET RAYMOND

Research Fellow

Expertise: Public policy research, evaluation methods, organizational development

The holder of a Ph.D. in political science from the University of Rochester, Margaret Raymond's current research interests include the use of rigorous evaluation methods to gauge performance of K–12 educational programs, the institutional capacity to perform evaluation, barriers to public policy accountability, and mismeasurement and misuse of performance information. Recent publications include, with Hoover fellow Eric Hanushek, “The Confusing World of Educational Accountability,” published in the National Tax Journal, and “Evaluating Education Philanthropy in Action,” which appeared in Seven Studies in Educational Philanthropy, published by the Fordham Foundation.